

INDIVIDUAL AND COLLECTIVE PERFORMANCE:

Alone we go faster, together we go higher!

Boost team spirit and achieve more sustainable individual and collective success—this conference based on the documentary Tandem Conquest addresses today’s managers’ concerns. Jérôme Adam invites us to discover a story that challenges conventional wisdom and certainties and highlights the possibilities inherent in the unconventional management of risks, unknowns and complementarities.

“ *Contrary to what I may have first thought, at no point did I feel pity (it’s so not his style!). I was simply floored by his courage in the face of adversity—an attitude both very much to the audience’s liking, and very successful.
And all this wrapped in a delightful sense of humor. We thank him again for his teachings... and to have surprised us!* ”

Context

«For us it is the skills that take precedence.»

«What we need is to stay tuned.»

«The differences are an opportunity and provide balance for everyone.»

«What matters is to act.»

So many postures displayed in organizations... but how to prompt creative connexions from individuals and promote team performance? How to really make diversity an asset to innovate? To what extent entrepreneurship spirit and supposed differences can be vital in managing and working together more effectively?

Themes addressed

- To consider difficulties as opportunities
- To take risks and letting go of the need to control everything
- To keep an open mind and develop complementarities
- To be yourself and rely on relays
- To keep your course and manage the unexpected

Tandem conquest: a breakaway aided by a documentary

(13mn or 26mn – Director: Henri Poulain)

An audacious challenge... To climb Mont Ventoux (French Mountain) by tandem cycling.

On the starting line: «A trailblazer and a pathfinder»

For Jérôme, without tandem, no Ventoux because Jérôme is blind.

For Guillaume, the tandem is the motivation for fulfilling a childhood dream.

From the implementation of the project to the arrival at the summit of Mont Ventoux with a spectacular storm creating a dramatic backdrop, climb aboard this shared epic journey, with a touch of crazy... and increase your energy!
